Use of Non-GAAP Financial Measures

Our earnings press release includes the non-generally accepted accounting principle (“non-GAAP”) liquidity measure of Available Cash before Reserves. The press release provides a reconciliation of this non-GAAP liquidity measure to its most directly comparable financial measure calculation, net cash flows from operating activities, as presented in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America (“GAAP”). Our non-GAAP measure should not be considered as an alternative to GAAP measure such as net income, operating income or cash flow from operating activities or any other GAAP measure of liquidity or financial performance.

Available cash. Available Cash before Reserves is a liquidity measure used by management to compare cash flows generated by us to the cash distribution paid to our limited partners and general partner. This is an important financial measure to the external users of financial statements, such as investors, commercial banks, research analysts and rating agencies, to assess: (1) the financial performance of our assets without regard to financing methods, capital structures, or historical cost basis; (2) the ability of our assets to generate cash sufficient to pay interest cost and support our indebtedness; (3) our operating performance and return on capital as compared to those of other companies in the midstream energy industry, without regard to financing and capital structure; and (4) the viability of projects and the overall rates of return on alternative investment opportunities. Lastly, Available Cash before Reserves (also referred to as distributable cash flow) is the quantitative standard used throughout the investment community with respect to publicly-traded partnerships.

We define available cash as net income or loss as adjusted for specific items, the most significant of which are the addition of non-cash expenses (such as depreciation), the substitution of cash generated by our joint ventures in lieu of our equity income attributable to such joint ventures, the elimination of gains and losses on asset sales (except those from the sale of surplus assets) and the subtraction of maintenance capital expenditures, which are expenditures that are necessary to sustain existing (but not to provide new sources of) cash flows.
