- (a) Represents weighted average index price per Bbl of each NGL component.
- (b) Represents the NYMEX Henry Hub index price or approximate NYMEX Henry Hub index price based on historical differentials to the index price on the derivative trade date.
- (c) Represent swaps that fix the basis differentials between the indices price at which the Company sells its Permian Basin, Mid-Continent and Gulf Coast gas and the NYMEX Henry Hub index price used in gas derivative contracts.

Permian Basin roll adjustment swap derivatives. The Company uses “roll adjustment” swap derivatives to mitigate the timing risk associated with the sales price of oil in the Permian Basin. In the Permian Basin, the Company generally sells its oil at a sales price based on the calendar month average NYMEX price of oil during that month, plus an adjustment calculated as the weighted average spread between the NYMEX price for that delivery month and (i) the next month and (ii) the following month during the period when the delivery month is prompt. The Company has roll adjustment swap derivatives for 3,000 Bbls per day of March 2012 through May 2012 oil sales and for 3,000 Bbls per day of oil sales for the year 2013. Under the terms of the roll adjustment swap derivatives, the Company pays the periodic variable roll adjustments and receives a fixed price of $0.28 per Bbl for March 2012 through May 2012 and $0.43 per Bbl for the year 2013. The Permian Basin roll adjustment swap derivatives are not included in the table presented above.

Diesel price derivatives. The Company has 250 Bbls of diesel derivative swap contracts for 2012 at an average per Bbl fixed price of $119.70. The diesel derivative swap contracts are priced at an index that is highly correlated to the prices that the Company incurs to fuel its drilling rigs and fracture stimulation fleet equipment. The Company purchases diesel derivative swap contracts to mitigate fuel price risk. The Company's diesel derivative swap contracts are not included in the table presented above.

Interest rate derivatives. The Company has interest rate derivative contracts that lock in, through August 2012, a fixed forward 10-year annual interest rate of 3.06% on $200 million notional amount of debt.
