Contributions to the PBS Telesp Plan are determined based on actuarial valuations prepared by independent actuaries, in accordance with the rules in force in Brazil. The Company's contributions to the Visão Telesp Plan are equal to those of the employees, varying from 2% to 9% of the contribution salary, based on the percentage chosen by the participant.

33. Insurance (Unaudited)

The Company and its subsidiaries' policies as well as that of the Telefónica Group includes the maintenance of insurance coverage for all assets and liabilities involving significant amounts and high risks based on management's judgment and following Telefónica S.A.'s corporate program guidelines. In this context Telecomunicações de São Paulo S.A. - Telesp complies with the Brazilian legislation for contracting insurance coverage.

The major insurances contracted by the Company are shown below:

34. Financial Instruments

In compliance with the terms of CVM Instruction No. 235/95 the Company and its subsidiaries made a valuation of their financial assets and liabilities in relation to market values based on available information and appropriate valuation methodologies. However the interpretation of market information as well as the selection of methodologies requires considerable judgment and reasonable estimates in order to produce adequate realizable values. As a result the estimates presented do not necessarily indicate the amounts which might be realized in the current market. The use of different market approaches and/or methodologies for the estimates may have a significant effect on the estimated realizable values.

Carrying and market values of financial instruments as of December 31, 2007 and 2006 are as follows:

34. Financial Instruments (Continued)

The discounted cash flow method was used to determine the market value of loans financings debentures and derivatives (exchange and interest rate swap) considering expected settlement of liabilities or realization of assets at the market rates prevailing at balance sheet date.

The Company has a total direct and indirect interest of 1.04% in Portugal Telecom and 0.52% in Portugal Multimédia valued by the cost method. The investment at market value is based on the last quotation of December 2007 on the Lisbon Stock Exchange for Portugal Telecom and Portugal Multimédia equivalent to R$8.93 (R$9.84 in December 2006) and R$9.55 respectively:

The principal market risk factors that affect the Company's business are detailed below:

a) Exchange rate risk

This risk arises from the possibility that the Company may incur losses due to exchange rate fluctuations which would increase the balances of loans financing and purchase commitments denominated in foreign currency and the related financial expenses. To reduce this risk the Company enters into hedge contracts (swaps) with financial institutions.

(In thousands of reais)

The Company's indebtedness and the result of loan financing and purchase commitment liabilities denominated in foreign currency are significantly affected by the foreign exchange rate risk. As of December 31 2007, 28.50% (35.18% on December 31, 2006) of the debt was denominated in foreign currency (U.S. dollar and yen); 100.09% (99.88% on December 31, 2006) of this debt was covered by asset positions on currency hedge transactions (swaps for CDI). Gains or losses on these operations are recorded in income. As of December 31, 2007, these transactions generated a net consolidated loss of R$157,553 (R$164,227 as of December 31, 2007). As of December 31, 2007, the Company recorded a liability of R$357,186 (R$316,318 as of December 31, 2007) to reflect the existing temporary loss. As these concern coverage operations, part of the net consolidated negative result of R$157,553 with derivatives is offset against exchange variation gains with debts, in the amount of R$93,901 (R$70,749 as of December 31, 2007).

The book and market values of the Company's exposure to the exchange rate risk as of December 31, 2007 and 2006 are as follows:

Due to the complexity of the process and of the non-significance of the results, the Company decided not to renew the non-financial liabilities hedges denominated in foreign currency. However, it is still monitoring the results of such non-financial liabilities and may decide to contract new hedges in the future if such non-financial exposure starts to be relevant or if the Company so decides for any other reason.

For BR CL purposes, the hedge (swaps) transactions are evaluated at the accrual basis method, which is considered all the contracted terms.

b) Interest rate risk

This risk arises from the possibility that the Company may incur losses due to internal and external interest rate fluctuations affecting the Company's results.

As of December 31, 2007, the Company had R$943,270 (R$822,603 as of December 31, 2006) of loans and financing in foreign currency, of which R$784.659 (R$553,394 as of December 31, 2006) was at fixed interest rates and R$158,612 (R$269,209 as of December 31, 2006) was at variable interest rates (Libor). To prevent against the exchange risk and variable interest rates on these foreign currency debts (Libor), the Company has hedge transactions in order to peg these debts to local currency, at floating rates indexed to the CDI (Inter-bank Deposit Certificate), in a way that the Company's financial result is affected by the CDI variation. As described in note 26, on December 31, 2007, the Company also had debentures issued in 2004 with interest based on the variation of the CDI of R$1,512,357 (R$1,514,514 as of December 31, 2006), as described in Note 16.

On the other hand, the Company invests its excess cash (temporary cash investments) of R$348,648 (R$173,165 as of December 31, 2005), mainly in short-term instruments, based on the CDI variation, which also reduces this risk. The book values of these instruments approximate market values, since they may be redeemed in the short term.

As of December 31, 2007, the Company had swap transactions □ CDI at fixed rate, to partially hedge against fluctuations in internal interest rates. Hedge operations amounts contracted total R$810,032 (R$908,316 as of December 31, 2006). These derivative operations generated a net consolidated positive result of R$4,514 (R$2,110 as of December 31, 2006), and this temporary loss is recorded in liabilities and income.

The Company also contracted CDI + 0.35% of CDI percentage swap with amount of principal of R$1,500,000, with identical flows of those of debentures issued by the Company and maturity in 2010, which generated net positive result of R$ 22.

Another risk to which the Company is exposed is the non-matching of the monetary restatement indices for its debts and accounts receivable. Telephone tariff adjustments do not necessarily match increases in local interest rates, which affect the Company's debts.

c) Debt acceleration risk

As of December 31, 2007, the Company's loan and financing agreements contain restrictive clauses (covenants), typically applicable to such agreements, relating to cash generation, debt ratios and other restrictions. The Company has complied with these restrictive clauses in full, and such covenants do not restrict its ability to conduct its ordinary course of business.

Credit risk

This risk arises from the possibility that the Company may incur losses due to the difficulty in receiving amounts billed to its customers. The credit risk on accounts receivable is dispersed. The Company constantly monitors the level of accounts receivable and limits the risk of past-due accounts, interrupting access to telephone lines in case the customer does not pay the related bills in 30 days. Exceptions are made for telecommunication services that must be maintained for security or national defense reasons.

As of December 31, 2007, the Company's customer portfolio had no subscribers whose receivables were individually higher than 1% of the total accounts receivable from services.

The Company is also subject to credit risk related to temporary cash investments and receivables from swap transactions. The Company reduces this exposure by dispersing it among first line financial institutions.

35. Management Compensation

The management compensation paid by the Company to its Board of Directors and officers amounted to approximately R$20,900 (R$22,300 in 2006). Of this amount R$14,200 (R$15,400 in 2006) correspond to salaries and benefits, and R$6,700 (R$6,900 in 2006) to bonus compensation.

36. Additional Information

a) On October 27, 2006 was published in the São Paulo's Official Municipal Gazette, the decree nº 47,817 regulating the Law nº 14,023/05 which foresees obligation to bury all aerial cabling in the city of São Paulo, requiring public service concessionaries in the city to comply with the law. The Company is analyzing the effects of the referred regulation to study its impacts.

b) Change in Preparation and Presentation of the Financial Statements:

On December 28, 2007, Law No. 11.638 was approved by the Brazilian President, which amends and revokes the provisions of Law No. 6.404, dated December 15, 1976 and Law No. 6385 dated December 7, 1976.

December 31, 2007 and 2006

(In thousands of reais)

Dear Shareholders,

Abiding by legal and statutory requirements, TELECOMUNICAÇÕES DE SÃO PAULO S.A. □ TELESP's management submits for your analysis the Management Report and the Financial Statements □ Company and Consolidated, with the Reports of Independent Auditors and Supervisory Board, for the year ended December 31, 2007.

1. Board of Directors' Message

Since its privatization in 1998, the Company has managed to attain significant achievements over the years. Among the most important we highlight social inclusion, which allows less favored population levels to have access to telephone and Internet services, which are fundamental items for individual and family development in the Information Era.

With the objective of meeting the specific needs of several market segments, the Company started to offer Alternative Plans, including Economy Telephone Line (□Linha da Economia□), Control Telephone Line (□Linha Controle□) and Pay by Minute Plans. As such, alternatives were offered to users, which were more adequate to their profile to allow them to have access to wire telephone.

The number of public telephones in São Paulo State cities significantly increased, from 180 thousand in 1998 to currently 250 thousand, which corresponds to density of 6.1 public telephones (□orelhões□) per one-thousand inhabitant group. In the São Paulo State we have installed approximately 1.8 thousand telephones for users with hearing problems.

As a result of the telephone service universalization efforts, telephone density in the São Paulo State reached 29.1 lines per 100 inhabitants.

This scenario results from the Company's continuous initiatives aiming at improving people's lives, facilitating business development and contributing to the progress of the communities in which it operates, offering innovative services based on Information and Communication Technologies. The Company further endeavors to continue being an innovative, competitive, open, committed and reliable legal entity.

Upon meeting the telephone service universalization target of Anatel in 2001, as the first wire telephone operator to do so, the key aims started to be technologic convergence, innovation and investment profitability.

TELECOMUNICAÇÕES DE SÃO PAULO S.A. □ TELESP

(In thousands of reais)

In relation to technologic convergence, and aiming at always being ahead in the offer of innovative products and at better meeting the community's telecommunication needs, the Company has actively endeavored since 2001 to expand its broadband and dial-up Internet access services, with a network prepared to offer 1 Mbps speed to a significant portion of its customer base. With this, the Company reached 2,052,617 Speedy customers at the end of 2007, up 27.8% as compared to prior year, thus consolidating the Company's qualification as integrated telecommunication services provider.

After having entered into commercial agreements with DTHi and TVA in 2006, the Company expanded its integrated service offers in 2007, through the launching of its own DTH (Direct to Home) Digital TV product. The Company also acquired in 2007 ownership interest in TVA, thus consolidating the commercial agreement previously entered into. Such advances allowed the expansion of integrated service offers. Further in October 2007, the Company and GloboSat entered into an agreement to include their channels in the program grid. Such initiatives were performed always in accordance with applicable regulations, with the objective of better serving consumers and meeting their specific needs.

At the end of 2007 the Company had 11,965,285 lines in service and productivity of 1,877 lines per employee (considering wire lines in service plus ADSL lines (Asymmetric Digital Subscriber Lines), an efficiency parameter which is among the best in the world.

Digital services, which include intelligent facilities such as call identification, call waiting, call transfer, voice mail and conference calls, among others, reached 6.3 million subscribers to a total of 15 million digital installed services in 2007.

Access to Internet was also expanded thanks to the investment in 2007 of R$583.1 million to expand and improve broadband Internet access (ADSL).

The investments made by the Company and its subsidiaries and affiliates in modernization, expansion, quality improvement and network maintenance in 2007 amounted to R$ 1,992.5 million, which confirms the long-term commitment of Telefônica Group in Brazil, as well as its confidence as foreign investor in Brazil's future.

Analyzing the Company's situation in 2007, we highlight Postos de Trabalho as well as Flexmídia and TecTotal services. The first offers telephone and Internet advisory services that Telefônica renders to companies, while the second is a high speed multimedia solution for plasma TVs of banks, retailers and universities. The third, TecTotal, corresponds to equipment installation, maintenance and technical support services.

December 31, 2007 and 2006

(In thousands of reais)

We highlight that the main characteristic of all Company initiatives was their innovative nature, which is fundamental for a dynamic business such as that of Telefônica. Telefônica's contest denominated Desafio Empreendedor (Entrepreneurial Challenge) represented a significant initiative that evidenced this, in which the Company received approximately 1,000 innovative projects from professionals and students from 21 Brazilian states and the Federal District.

In 2007, the Company destined to Federal, State and Municipal governments a total of R$7.2 billion in taxes, levies and contributions. To FUST R$132.5 million and to FUNTTEL R$64.5 million were destined.

In 2007, dividends and interest on shareholders' equity were declared aggregating R$5.43 per common and R$5.97 per preferred share referring to said year. Such amounts reflect the Company's solid economic and financial situation, although are still somehow modest in relation to the investments that have been made since its privatization.

The Company's indebtedness level may be considered low for its size and 28.5% of its borrowings are denominated in foreign currency. Its efficient financial and foreign exchange management policy resulted in maintenance of low net financial expenses.

The Company has 7,467 direct employees, and also indirectly employs more than 41 thousand workers.

Owing to the scenario currently prevailing in the telecommunications sector, in which competition and innovation are every time more present, the Company will continue its process of expanding its qualification through special and bold plans.

Having almost 10 years of large scale operations in Brazil, in 2008 the Company will launch □SuperSpeedy□, an innovative product based on an optical fiber network that allows the creation of digital districts, starting with the capital city of São Paulo.

Aware of its social and environmental responsibility, and in order to coordinate the related initiatives of its companies, the Telefônica Group, to which Telesp belongs, created the Fundação Telefônica in March 1999.

Among the various initiatives, we highlight the EducaRede program, an open and free-of-charge portal for students and teachers of public schools, Pró Menino program, which promotes defense of children's and adolescents' rights, as well as the volunteers program, which aims at meeting the needs of poor communities.

2. Economic Context

In 2007, the balance of transactions in Brazil with the rest of the world went through additional increases. Financial flows towards the country increased significantly. Direct foreign investments estimated at US$36 billion, almost twice those in 2006, reached historic records. Portfolio investments (long-term bonds and shares of Brazilian companies) also increased by approximately US$39.8 billion, as compared to US$14.7 billion in 2006. Balance of trade was once again significant, presenting surplus of US$40 billion. These good results allowed increase by US$95 billion in international reserves, which reached US$181 billion, another historic record. This helped make Brazilian economy stronger to face increased volatility in global financial markets expected for 2008, due to the uncertainties in relation to the impacts on economic growth worldwide from the credit market crisis in the USA.

As a consequence of the increase in exports and the accrual of international reserves, the external solvency indices continued improving, thus allowing an additional decrease in Brazil risk. In fact, annual average Embi+ was of 181 base points in 2007, as compared to annual average of 236 base points in 2006. In addition, in the course of the year the three main international risk rating agencies (Moody's, S&P and Fitch) increased the Brazilian grade, which is now one level below investment grade.

With a stronger external sector and the decrease in Brazil risk, Brazilian currency continued appreciating, trend which started in 2004. Average exchange rate in 2007 was R$/US$ 1.95, as compared to R$/US$ 2.18 in 2006. This corresponds to Brazilian currency appreciation by 10.5% in nominal terms.

This Brazilian real appreciation benefited consumer inflation, for reducing the value of imported products and also promoted imports. This allowed reducing the cost of inputs and capital goods for industries, as well as supplementing national supply of consumer goods, thus avoiding the generation of inflationary pressures arising from the increase in aggregate demand. IPCA increased 4.46% in 2007, close to the pursued Brazilian Central Bank target of 4.50% . This variation was in excess of that for 2006; namely of 3.14%, due to the higher increase in food prices, thus reflecting the international commodities market pressure started in the second 2007 half.

Favorable inflation evolution allowed Brazilian Central Bank to continue reducing the basic interest rate, process which had started in the second 2004 half. Selic rate was reduced by 200 base points in 2007, as such reaching 11.25% p.a. at the end of this period.

(In thousands of reais)

A less strict monetary policy allowed economic activity recovery. In the labor market, average unemployment rate was 9.3% in 2007, as compared to 10.0% in 2006. Average workers' wage increased 3.1% in 2007, as compared to the same 2006 period, thus reflecting more intense job generation as well as the formalization of existing ones. Wage costs were up 6.3% in the same comparison. Retail sales, which have presented an increasing trend since mid 2003, were up 9.7% in the first 11 months of 2007, as compared to the same 2006 period. Also worthy of mention was the positive effect from credit expansion, whose participation in GDP increased from 30.7% at the end of 2006 to 34.7% at the end of 2007.

In addition, domestic demand activity has also resulted in positive evolution of income distribution in Brazil. According to IBGE data, income from lower-income classes has presented increases proportionally higher than those of higher-income classes, which results in a continuous income distribution process. This is a favorable factor for allowing consumer market expansion for several goods and services. This leads to an increase in customer base for new telecommunication services, through the incorporation of segments whose former purchasing power was not sufficient to consume such services. In the lower-income segments there is higher flexibility in demand for telephone services as a consequence of income increases.

All of these elements account for the economic dynamism of Brazil. In the third 2007 quarter, Brazilian Gross Domestic Product was up 5.7% as compared to the third 2006 quarter. Family consumption increased even more intensely, being up 6.03% . The services sector benefited from this economic growth. The increase in wage costs and credit, combined with Brazilian real appreciation to the US dollar, resulted in increase in Brazilian consumers' purchasing power, thus benefiting our consumers' capacity to buy telecommunication services.

The participation of the services sector in GDP increased to 55.5% in the third 2007 quarter, as compared to 54.7% in the third 2006 quarter. In the third 2007 quarter, Brazilian GDP of services sector was up 4.8% in relation to the same 2006 quarter, for which the increase had been of 4.6% .

3. Regulatory Environment

In the period from March 16 to July 29, 2007 there was a change in tariffs for local calls, which started to be paid by minute instead of pulses. This process called for investments in IT infrastructure and customer services.

The migration, provided for by sector regulations, was successfully concluded for 100% of customers.

In order not to affect customers who usually make longer calls (basically dial-up Internet access), Anatel created the Compulsorily Offered Alternative Service Plan (PASOO Plan), which maintained the same subscription tariff for the Basic Plan. The basic difference between the plans is in the type of tariff.

Subscribers to Basic Pay per Pulse Plan who had not elected to participate in the PASOO plan, were automatically migrated to the Basic Pay per Minute Plan. These customers may, however, still migrate to the PASOO or the Basic Plan at their discretion. Customers that already used alternative pay per pulse plans were also fully migrated to the same plans, which are now pay per minute plans.

4.1 Shareholding Structure

Shareholding structure of the controlling Group remained unaltered in 2007.

At the end of 2007, Telefónica Internacional S.A. □ TISA, held 34.87% of common and 80.53% of preferred shares and SP Telecomunicações Holding Ltda., 49.19% of common and 7.11% of preferred shares and Telefônica Data do Brasil Ltda, 1.52% of common and 1.50% of preferred shares of the Company.

5. Operating Performance

5.1 Competitive Environment

In 2007, the Brazilian telecommunications market experienced an increase in competition level as compared to that prevailing in prior year. The increase in the offer of integrated telecommunication services intensified competition among players offering wire telephone, mobile telephone, subscription TV, Internet and Data services aiming at being the sole provider of telecommunication services to customers.

In the voice market, the Company faced competition in all of its segments. Cable TV operators operated in the high and medium-income segments offering voice services integrated to TV services. In the low-income segment, there was offer of low-cost products and prepaid plans by mobile telephone operators. In addition, mobile telephone operators started to offer convergent mobile and wire telephone services.

Another significant factor was the marked increase in the number of cellular telephone subscribers and the aggressive offer of on-net tariffs, which increased the advantages of mobile calls in relation to wire calls.

In the broadband market, the main highlight was the offer of integrated voice, broadband and TV packages by cable TV operators, who focused their strategy on maximizing their subscriber base to conquer wire telephone and broadband customers.

In the corporate segment, competitors, who already operated in an aggressive manner in the data market, intensified their actuation, especially in relation to PYMES segment (small and medium companies), with customized integrated voice and Internet service offers.

5.2 Commercial Strategy

This year the Company experienced a slight decrease in the number of wire telephone terminals, in part as a consequence of increased competition, but mainly due to base cleaning initiatives and increased selection of customers. In order to maintain wire telephone attractive, the Company focused on the offer of bundles and developed differentiated services for each segment. Particularly for low-income segment, the highlight was the offer of low cost prepaid lines that avoided migration of part of customers to mobile telephone services and other wire telephone services offered by competitors.

Voice traffic value defense by the Company has been successful through expansion of Pay per Minute Packages, including offers of services integrated with Speedy. In the long-distance market, the adoption of competitive tariffs has helped maintain the already consolidated position of the □Super 15□ brand, despite the ever increasing competition, with alternative communication means, such as VoIP and aggressive tariffs of mobile telephone operators.

In addition to traditional telephone services, the Company continues focusing on expanding its operation in other markets, especially those with higher potential, as the case of the broadband, TV, IT and services segments.

In relation to broadband services, Speedy continues being leader, with more than 2 million customers, despite the increase in competition in the last period. Initiatives carried out during the year have helped to maintain this leading position. The technical upgrade of Speedy allowed offering at least 1 Mbps speed to most customers. The inclusion of a fixed voice service tariff allowing an unlimited number of local calls, in Telefônica Duos and Trios, resulted in a more aggressive bundles value proposal. In addition, other initiatives are in progress with the objective of increasing competitiveness of Company products, such as the implementation of an optical fiber network to offer services to households in the Jardins district, started in 2007, which will offer speed of up to 30 Mb (4 times the highest currently offered in the market) and differentiated services for high income customers.

The year of 2007 was marked by significant advances made by the Company in the TV market. In 2006, the Company started offering TV services through a strategic agreement with DTHi and TVA. In 2007, the Company launched its own DTH Digital TV product, and acquired ownership interest in TVA, thus consolidating the commercial partnership entered into in 2006. These advances allowed the Company to offer the DUO services (voice and Speedy services or voice and digital TV services) as well as the TRIO services (voice, Speedy and digital TV services). In addition, the Company entered into an agreement to include GloboSat channels in its program grid, which were previously offered exclusively by NET and SKY, thus improving the TV product proposed value.

In order to innovate and expand its services offer, the Company launched the TecTotal service, which corresponds to installation, maintenance and technical support for equipment traded through agreements with retail chains. TecTotal involves rendering by the Company of services at households through its wholly-owned subsidiary A. Telecom S.A., increasing its participation in the value chain and improving its relationship with customers.

Another Company achievement was the introduction of the Workstation Infrastructure, which corresponds to customized IT infrastructure solutions provided against monthly payments by users. The Company offers the Posto de Trabalho solution to large companies and Posto Informático solution to small and medium companies, which include a package of voice, data, Internet access, network and equipment management services. Integrated offer of IT and communication services was one of the strategic cornerstones of the Company in the corporate market in 2007.

Intense competition has prevailed in the corporate segment, with the consolidation of companies in the data market. The Company operates in this segment as provider of complete telecommunication solutions (data, wire and Internet), in order to consolidate its position and increase satisfaction of these demanding customers with solutions that are each time more integrated and adherent to their needs.

5.4 Prospects

One of the most important aspects to telecommunications industry development in the next years is the technologic convergence, represented by integration of networks and services, about which discussions have been promoted in relation to technologic, legal, regulatory and marketing aspects.

In analyzing more mature markets, such as the European and the Asian ones, as well as the current evolution of supply of services and convergent products in the Brazilian market, there is the need of building a more complete services portfolio, with increased integration among operations, particularly voice wire, broadband and paid TV operations. In this respect, the Company has endeavored to remain competitive by offering convergent products and every time more integrated solutions. As an example, we mention the Company's beginning of participation in the TV market offering triple-play services, to cater for this new demand for more complete services and increase satisfaction of an important share of our customers. Still in the TV market, the recently launched Digital TV service in São Paulo (December 2007) allows interaction, high image definition and new business opportunities. Through Digital TV (DTH) and IPTV the Company is pioneering in taking these opportunities.

December 31, 2007 and 2006

(In thousands of reais)

The broadband market is expected to grow significantly, since it represents a fundamental platform for the development of convergent products and services. Increase in offered speeds and in products sophistication is expected, for new business models, as already occurred with VoIP, e-commerce and Triple-play, also the Company has endeavored to lead this market movements. Among the main initiatives the highlights are the VOD (video on demand) project and IPTV, which use IP (Internet Protocol) platform to send digital video files, and the current optical fiber broadband offer with speed of up to 30 Mbps.

The increase in the number of offered services, in order to consolidate relationship with customers, will involve other value chains, such as bank services and retail sales, in addition to traditional telecommunication services. In this respect, certain operators have already offered to their customers credit services, purchase of products charged to telephone bills and partnership with retail chains for the acquisition of goods and services under special conditions (mileage and fidelity programs). The Company itself, aiming at being pioneer in this respect, recently entered into a partnership with Banco do Brasil to offer a card for both credit services as well as telephone services, named ¶Fale Sempre¶. The expansion of services beyond telecommunication services corresponds to an every time more evident trend. Such expansion will reach security, entertainment and publicity industries mainly through cellular operators.

In relation to competition, cheaper infrastructure costs through use of new technologies and the possibility of segregation among infrastructure, services and local networks will probably promote geographic expansion of the current wire and mobile operators outside their concession areas. This increase in competition is already taking place, mainly in the mobile and long distance market, which is a trend that will also reach local wire telephone operations with, for instance, beginning of operation of a fourth recently inaugurated mobile operator in São Paulo. The Company has followed these movements and is also taking measures to take opportunities outside its concession area, without relinquishing its consolidated leadership within the concession area. This increase in competition expected to take place in the mobile and wire voice market, will help convert the service into a commodity, with every time lower participation of voice service revenue in total revenue of operators, and the growth of new services. In this scenario, focus shall shift from service price to customized quality services, as well as the offer of new products.

December 31, 2007 and 2006

(In thousands of reais)

There has been evidence of a slight slowdown in the mobile telephone market and increased competition, despite the growth in the last years. In the future, mobile operators are expected to endeavor every time more to identify alternative revenue sources, with wire telephone and broadband services as the main targets. This was confirmed by the recent offer of mobile broadband service by a cellular operator, for price and speed compatible with the current wire broadband (ADSL and cable) offer. In addition, the 3G service licenses auction, which resulted in total goodwill in excess of 80%, and the offer from all the current mobile operators and some of the new entrants, evidence the interest of mobile operators in convergent services, particularly broadband services.

Brazilian economy has presented moderate growth in the last years, however, with significant increase in domestic consumption, mainly in class C. With this, certain markets, such as those of broadband Internet access and TV, will probably present increased growth due to the inclusion of new social and economic segments that have presented income increase, which evidences adequate geographic cover and mix of products and services by operators to better meet their needs. In view of this trend, the Company is focusing on these markets, mainly the TV market, in order to shift the focus from consumption development from class A and B, in which service penetration is already high, to all of its customers base, through its different technological alternatives and partners.

6. Financial Performance

6.1 Gross and Net Operating Revenue

In 2007, the Company posted consolidated gross revenue of R$21,183.8 million, up 1.9% as compared to same 2006 period. Net revenue totaled R$14,727.6 million (R$14,643.0 million in 2006). Tariff adjustments which took place in July 2007 contributed to this performance, together with the increase in revenue from communication services to legal entities and increase in "Speedy" and domestic long- distance services.

6.2 Operating Income Before Net Financial Expenses

Operating income before net consolidated financial expenses was down 10.0%, from R$4,231.7 million in 2006 to R$3,515.8 million in 2007. This decrease resulted from the decrease in local and inter-network services as well as in network use. There was increase in operating expenses as a result from the increase in interconnection expenses, outsourced services, cost of products sold and payroll expenses. Other highlights are other operating income, particularly from sale of defaulting customer portfolio and ICMS recovery.

6.3 EBITDA

Consolidated EBITDA (earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization) reached R$6,214.9 million, down 10.0% as compared to that for 2006. EBITDA margin was 42.2%, presenting a decrease of 5.0 p.p. when compared with the same period of 2006. Excluding the reversal effect of federal tax reserve in the 3Q06 of R$257,6 million, the reduction would be 3.2 p.p. This effect was justified mainly by realized auctions during 2007, among theirs by the Organizational Restructure Program, which impacted the personnel expenses and by the review of commercial policy that focused in the improvement of customer portfolio profile and in the future decrease of fraud and insolvency. Therefore, the Company is preparing to increase its innovative product offers to serve each better the needs of its customers.
