Cameco's Port Hope Workers Accept Contract Offer

Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, Canada, September 14, 2004

Cameco Corporation announced today that about 200 hourly employees at its Port Hope conversion facility have accepted a three-year contract offer.

The employees, represented by two locals of the United Steelworkers of America, voted 62% overall in favour of the contract offer. They had been on strike since midnight July 28, 2004.

We are pleased to finalize an agreement with our unionized employees, said Cameco president and chief executive officer Jerry Grandey. We will be looking for opportunities to enhance communication with the union and employees in order to improve our relationship.

The employees are expected to return to work starting Thursday, September 16, 2004. Completing the scheduled summer maintenance and ramping up production will take about five weeks. The conversion facility is currently about 1,000 tonnes behind its 2004 production target of 12,500 tonnes uranium. During the strike, Cameco met sales obligations to customers by reducing its conversion inventory.

Cameco, with its head office in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, is the world's largest uranium producer. The company's uranium products are used to generate electricity in nuclear energy plants around the world, providing one of the cleanest sources of energy available today. Cameco's shares trade on the Toronto and New York stock exchanges.
