OF THE GENERAL MEETING OF SHAREHOLDERS*BUSINESS REPORT (from April 1, 2005, to March 31, 2006)1. OUTLINE OF BUSINESS OPERATIONS*(1) Principal Substance of Business

The Company engages primarily in the manufacture and sales of home electronics and car electronics products, and all businesses incidental and related to the businesses mentioned above.

Effective from the 60th accounting period, the Company changed business segment classification for certain businesses. Results related to plasma displays for business use and DJ equipment have been moved from Others to Home Electronics. Corresponding figures for the previously reported operating revenue by segment and segment information have been reclassified accordingly.

The following table sets forth the principal products of the Company and the ratio of operating revenue by segment to total operating revenue:

Segment	Principal Products in Each Segment	Ratio of Sales by Segment to Total Sales
		60th Accounting Period	59th Accounting Period
Home Electronics	Plasma displays, DVD recorders, DVD players, DVD drives, stereo systems, individual stereo components, DJ equipment, telephones and equipment for cable-TV systems	47.0%	45.4%
Car Electronics	Car navigation systems, Car stereos, car AV systems and car speakers	43.8%	42.7%
Patent Licensing	Licensing of patents related to laser optical disc technologies	1.1%	1.4%
Others	Organic light-emitting diode (OLED) display panels, factory automation systems, electronics devices and parts and business-use AV systems	8.1%	10.5%

Overseas	522,198	462,291	113.0
Total	754,964	711,042	106.2

- Notes
1. The Company's consolidated financial statements have been prepared in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America (U.S. GAAP).
  2. Operating revenue in the Patent Licensing segment consists of royalty revenue of the Company's U.S. subsidiary.
  3. In the 60th accounting period, the Company sold a subsidiary engaged in the development of cable TV software, and reached a preliminary agreement on the sale of subsidiaries involved in the electronic components business. As a result, the operating results of these subsidiaries, and the gain on the sale are presented as income from discontinued operations. Corresponding figures for the previous accounting period have been reclassified accordingly.

In the 60th accounting period, the year ended March 31, 2006, consolidated operating revenue rose 6.2% year on year to 754,964 million yen. However, the Company posted a net loss of 84,986 million yen, compared with a net loss of 8,789 million yen in the 59th accounting period. During the period under review, the average value of the Japanese yen was weaker against the U.S. dollar and the euro by 5.1% and 1.9%, respectively, compared with the 59th accounting period.

Home Electronics sales increased 9.9% year on year to 354,690 million yen. Plasma display sales rose by approximately 30%. Sales of own brand plasma displays fell in Japan but grew overseas. Rising sales overseas were driven by an expanding market for high-resolution models in North America and Europe. Although OEM (original equipment manufacturer) sales increased, this mainly reflects the September 30, 2004 acquisition of a plasma display production subsidiary. Pioneer reported higher sales of DJ equipment, but sales of DVD recorders, DVD players, and stereo systems declined.

Table of Contents

Car Electronics sales climbed 8.9% year on year to 330,522 million yen. Sales of car audio products were higher both in consumer markets and on an OEM basis. Consumer-market sales expanded primarily in Central and South America, as well as North America and Russia, while OEM sales rose primarily in North America and Japan. Sales of car navigation systems increased in consumer markets, with sales growth coming mainly from Japan and North America. OEM sales increased in North America due to the start of new OEM transactions, but dropped in Japan as the effect of demand generated by the roll out of new models in the previous period diminished. OEM sales represented 35% of total Car Electronics sales in the 60th accounting period, down from 36% in the previous period. In Patent Licensing, royalty revenue decreased 16.6% year on year to 8,540 million yen. This decrease was mainly attributable to the impact of the expiration of some patents licensed to the optical disc industry. In the Others segment, sales declined 18.0% year on year to 61,212 million yen. This mainly reflected falling sales of factory automation systems, despite higher sales of compact speaker units for cellular phones. The Company posted a net loss of 84,986 million yen, compared with a net loss of 8,789 million yen in the previous period, mainly due to a decreased gross profit margin resulting from falling prices for our major products, retirement charges related to the incentive-based early retirement plan, impairment losses on property, plant and equipment mainly for plasma displays, and losses related to the dissolution of equity-method affiliate ELDis, Inc., in connection with the Company's business restructuring plans.

(b) Research and Development

Amid rapid technological innovation in the electronics industry, Pioneer conducts research and development (R&D) with the aim of creating and quickly commercializing new technologies. Our efforts are focused on technologies spanning flat panel displays, high-density recording and playback, digital audio/video (AV) products and information technology (IT), as well as broadcasting and communications.

Pioneer's main R&D activities and accomplishments in the 60th accounting period were as follows:

FEA Image Sensor with HEED Cold Cathodes and HARP Target

In May 2005, Pioneer and Japan Broadcasting Corporation (NHK) succeeded in jointly developing a compact, ultra-sensitive imaging device called a Field Emitter Array (FEA) image sensor with HEED*<sup>1</sup> cold cathodes and HARP*<sup>2</sup> target.

This device consists of an active-matrix HEED cold cathode array developed by Pioneer facing an ultra-sensitive HARP photoconductive film. The whole device is only 10mm thick, roughly one-tenth the thickness of imaging tubes used in conventional ultra-sensitive cameras (around 100mm), making it ideal for compact cameras. Pioneer and NHK paved the way for this highly sensitive image sensor by combining a HEED cold cathode array, which consists of a micro-HEED-element matrix and stably emits electrons at low operating voltage, with an active-matrix circuitry, which enables the least wiring for assembly and high drive speeds.

This breakthrough represents a major step toward commercializing energy-efficient, compact, and ultra-sensitive cameras that can pick up high-quality images in poor light conditions. The technology not only lays the groundwork for highly versatile and ultra-sensitive cameras needed at the frontlines of news reporting but also promises a wide range of applications in consumer products such as camcorders, night-vision cameras for automobiles, and security cameras.

The prototype image sensor developed by Pioneer and NHK consists of 256 x 192 pixels, with a pixel size of 50 x 50 micrometers. Going forward, Pioneer and NHK aim to rapidly commercialize this technology by increasing the pixel number by further reducing the pixel size.

*1 High-efficiency Electron Emission Device:

Pioneer's original electron emission device with superior emission efficiency as a cold cathode; it employs the emission of high-energy electrons generated in solids.

*2 High-gain Avalanche Rushing amorphous Photoconductor:

A film developed principally by NHK that converts light into electric charges. Because the electric charge is amplified without increasing noise, the film offers much higher sensitivity than conventional CCD image sensors.

(c) Addressing Current Challenges:

The global economy is experiencing an overall recovery, supported by robust consumer spending, despite some concerns over surging materials prices, including crude oil. However, Pioneer faces an extremely challenging business environment, due to ongoing price-based competition involving its core products.

In this climate, we will work to rebuild our brand and improve our operating results by focusing on the innovative, high-quality, and value-added products that define Pioneer. To achieve this, Pioneer will recapture the essence of its group philosophy "Move the Heart and Touch the Soul" of more people around the world.

In the plasma display business, our production output is increasing in step with surging overall market demand. With a forecast of further growth in demand, Pioneer expects to see an increase in the capacity utilization rates of some production lines year on year, but will suspend or shut down the operation of certain production lines incompatible with new products. Our efforts are also focused on improving profitability by continuing to reduce costs, while reducing OEM sales of panel modules and focusing instead on own-brand plasma display products. In addition, Pioneer will bring more innovative products to market, including 1080p plasma displays, aiming to improve its brand value and expand its business.

In the DVD product business, the market for these products is growing, but prices are rapidly falling. In response, Pioneer will reduce costs through production in China and collaborations with other companies, and raise the return on product development investments through external sales of key components. Meanwhile, product development and design processes will be reviewed thoroughly to raise the efficiency and speed of development. In DVD drives for personal computers (PCs), Pioneer plans to offer new value-added proposals by shifting the main thrust of product development to Blu-ray Disc drives, a promising next-generation product. We will narrow down our DVD recorder lineup to products in areas of expertise as part of efforts to propose value-added products that are embraced by customers. Furthermore, through economies of scale generated by volume production of DVD drives for PCs that share key components, Pioneer aims to improve profitability in the DVD recorder business.

In the car electronics business, Pioneer is targeting fast-growing consumer markets of Central and South America, Russia and elsewhere, in order to retain its position of leadership in car audio products. In addition, amid the uptake and growth of music content distribution and digital broadcasting, the Company will work to drive earnings growth in the car electronics business by offering products that stand apart from those of other companies through the creation of new value and functions.

Table of Contents

In car navigation systems, Pioneer will actively press ahead with business expansion in Europe and North America, where full-fledged consumer markets are emerging, as well as in Japan's consumer market, where Pioneer's car navigation systems have always enjoyed a strong reputation. Aiming to reduce burgeoning software development costs accompanying product advancements, Pioneer is reforming product development processes and raising their efficiency through standardization.

In the OEM car navigation system business, Pioneer is redoubling efforts in the growing market for car navigation systems offered as dealer options in Japan. In parallel, the Company aims to capture new orders by offering new proposals to OEM customers that leverage our own product planning capabilities, which have been proven in consumer markets, and the advantages of conducting map-related content production within the group. Meanwhile, in the OEM car audio products business too, Pioneer aims to make the most of its strengths in consumer markets to drive further business expansion.

Turning to structural reforms, Pioneer has implemented an incentive-based early retirement plan to reduce personnel levels. Meanwhile, the Company has been identifying issues and exploring concrete initiatives in connection with the following five management innovation projects.

Formulate a new corporate vision that acts as medium-term guidelines under Pioneer's new management framework.

Revise and reinforce all core processes for developing, manufacturing and selling products, aiming to create products that customers enjoy.

Change the corporate culture to foster an open and relaxed atmosphere, as well as effectively implement Plan, Do, Check, Action (PDCA) cycles.

Revitalize the audio business, with the goal of rebuilding Pioneer's brand image by reviewing Company-wide initiatives.

Optimally allocate head office strategy formulation and administrative functions on a consolidated basis, aiming to raise efficiency by reviewing head office functions and organizations group-wide.

Pioneer is currently formulating a concrete action plan incorporating proposals for each project. Pursuant to the above project to optimally allocate head office strategy formulation and administrative functions, the Company implemented organizational reforms centering on administrative and back office divisions on April 1 this year. In addition, Pioneer has changed its operating processes in light of project recommendations and has begun business activities based on these new processes as part of the above project to revise and reinforce core processes.

Going forward, Pioneer will raise management efficiency and speed up management processes to improve earnings by reducing the number of directors/executive officers, while reforming additional operating processes under its new organization and management framework.

(3) Capital Expenditures

The total amount of capital expenditures during the period under review was 40,325 million yen, the principal of which was invested in land and buildings, as well as facilities and molds for production.

(4) Financing

There was no stock or bond issuance during the period under review.

- Notes:
- The Company's consolidated financial statements have been prepared in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America (U.S. GAAP).
  - As for the 57th accounting period, net income increased, reflecting a large increase in sales in Home Electronics, Car Electronics and Others, despite a decrease in royalty revenue in Patent Licensing. As for the 58th accounting period, net income increased mainly as a result of increased sales and improved gross profit margin as well as decreased selling, general and administrative expenses. Lower average value of the yen against the euro during the year compared to the previous year affected gross profit margin favorably. Total assets increased due to the issuance of convertible bonds of 60,000 million yen in aggregate principal amount, net proceeds of which were planned to be applied mainly toward investment in the plasma display business. As for the 59th accounting period, the Company posted a net loss, reflecting a decreased gross profit margin resulting from intensified price competition for our major products, despite the increased operating revenue. In addition, impairment losses of carrying value of certain production facilities and losses in connection with withdrawal from North American cable TV set-top box business were recognized. The business results for this 60th accounting period are as described under the caption 1. OUTLINE OF BUSINESS OPERATIONS (2) Result of Business Operations and Addressing Current Challenges in this report.
  - Net income per share has been computed by dividing net income available to holders of common stock by the weighted-average number of shares of common stock outstanding during each year. Total shareholders equity per share is based on the number of shares of common stock outstanding at the end of each period.
  - In the 60th accounting period, the Company sold a subsidiary engaged in the development of cable TV software, and reached a preliminary agreement on the sale of subsidiaries involved in the electronic components business. As a result, the operating results of these subsidiaries, and the gain on the sale are presented as income from discontinued operations in the consolidated statements of operations in accordance with Statement of Financial Accounting Standards ( SFAS ) No. 144, Accounting for the Impairment or Disposal of Long-Lived Assets. Corresponding figures for the previous fiscal year have been reclassified accordingly.

- Notes:
- As for the 57th accounting period, due to a worsening gross profit margin and increases of selling, general and administrative expenses, ordinary income increased, thanks to the increase of non-operating income that was brought about by a gain in dividend income and other factors. As a result, net income during the period increased, despite a decrease in extraordinary gains, because extraordinary losses diminished as well due to a decrease in losses related to business reorganization. As for the 58th accounting period, ordinary income increased due to increased sales and a decrease in selling, general and administrative expenses. As a result, net income also increased. Total assets increased due to the issuance of convertible bonds of 60,000 million yen in aggregate principal amount, net proceeds of which were planned to be applied mainly toward investment in the plasma display business. As for the 59th accounting period, although sales increased, an ordinary loss was posted due to a decreased gross profit margin and an increase in selling, general and administrative expenses. Net loss was posted, reflecting expenses incurred in connection with withdrawal from certain businesses facing unfavorable prospects, despite an extraordinary gain recorded in conjunction with the transfer of the substitutional portion of our employee welfare pension plan to the Japanese government. As for the 60th accounting period, although sales increased, an ordinary loss was posted due to a decreased gross profit margin, an increase in selling, general and administrative expenses and a decrease in dividend income. Agenda Item No. 1. Approval of Proposal of Appropriation of Unappropriated Retained Earnings for the 60th Accounting Period

The board of directors hereby proposes to appropriate the unappropriated retained earnings for the 60th accounting period as described on page 29.

The Company sets dividend payments appropriately in light of its financial position, consolidated operating results, and other factors, but has a basic policy of maintaining stable dividends.

Under this dividend policy, the Board hereby regrettably proposes to reduce the year-end dividend for the 60th accounting period by 10 yen per share of common stock from that for the previous accounting period to 2.5 yen per share of common stock. This proposal reflects the Company's large losses for the 60th accounting period on both non-consolidated and consolidated bases, amid a continually challenging business environment. Combined with the interim dividend, this payment will bring the total annual cash dividends for the 60th accounting period to 10 yen per share of common stock, as compared to 25 yen per share of common stock for the previous accounting period.

The Board has determined to propose no bonus to Directors and Corporate Auditors for the 60th accounting period.
