December 19, 2011

Dear Colleague,

I want to thank all of you for your continuing efforts and commitment to the company's success throughout 2011. This has been another very positive year for Goodrich, and we are excited about our prospects for 2012 and beyond.

Since we announced the proposed integration with United Technologies/Hamilton Sundstrand, you have all done a tremendous job to ensure that our customers are supported and our business continues to operate successfully. Because of your hard work, we have achieved many accomplishments. Some recent ones include:

Our Sensors and Integrated Systems team in the UK becoming the first manufacturing operation to receive the prestigious supply chain award from the aerospace industry trade group, ADS, for achieving nearly perfect on-time delivery and product quality for an entire year.

Monarch Airlines Limited selecting Goodrich to provide SmartDisplay® Electronic Flight Bags (EFB) for its Airbus A300, A320, A321 and A330 aircraft.

Boeing selecting Goodrich to provide landing gear system maintenance services in support of the United States Air Force fleet of Boeing C-17 Globemaster III aircraft.

As we approach the end of the year, I also want to update you on the progress we are making on the proposed integration of Goodrich with United Technologies/Hamilton Sundstrand. As we've communicated, the proposed integration provides our employees the opportunity to be part of an organization with a strong track record of industry-leading excellence and the depth of resources that are increasingly beneficial for sustained success in our industry. The integration will offer expanded opportunities for career growth and advancement for employees of both companies.

We are excited to move forward with the integration planning process and hope you share our enthusiasm about this transformative step in our company's history. The integration team is meeting on a regular basis and is making good progress. Our second Milestone Review (Passport 1) was conducted in Charlotte last week. The leadership of both companies was briefed on a number of topics, including readiness for operating as one company once the transaction is approved.

We are making good progress on obtaining the necessary regulatory approvals. On December 6, we filed an updated preliminary proxy statement to address comments the company received from the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). This is a customary process, as the SEC is given the opportunity to review and comment on a company's proxy statement before it is finalized and distributed to shareholders. This is an important step toward organizing the Goodrich shareholders' vote on the proposed combination.

As part of our revised preliminary proxy statement, we disclosed that on November 10, 2011, Goodrich received a request for additional information from the Department of Justice (DOJ) relating to our filing under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Antitrust Improvements Act of 1976 (HSR Act). The DOJ request, commonly referred to as a second request, is a routine aspect of the regulatory process in the U.S. We are cooperating with the DOJ to obtain approval of the transaction as expeditiously as possible. We are cooperating with UTC in making its regulatory filings in Canada, Mexico, the European Union, China, Japan, Brazil and South Korea, and I am pleased to report that Brazil has already responded favorably to the submission.

We have updated our list of frequently asked questions (FAQs) which is attached for your convenience. The questions starting at number 33 are new, and we will continue to update this document as more information becomes available. We also continue to collect your questions through our human resources organization, and we will continue to communicate with you on a regular basis as we move toward the completion of this transaction.

It is important to remember that until the transaction closes, Goodrich and United Technologies will continue to operate as independent companies. It remains extremely important that we continue to execute our business strategy, satisfy our customers and focus on our performance, as we have been doing throughout 2011 and will continue to do as we enter 2012.

Thank you again for your continued hard work and dedication to Goodrich and for all you do to make our company successful. I wish you and your families a happy and healthy 2012.

Sincerely,

Marshall Larsen

Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer
