To all employees:

For those of you who had the opportunity to listen to our earnings call yesterday, you know we had a strong second quarter and continue to be on-track with our revenue and earnings Vital Few goals for 2015. Our team's efforts helped us create very solid growth in our second quarter both in the US and International markets. Well done!

We continue to make great progress with advancing each of our near-term clinical programs toward commercialization. Starting with HeartMate 3 in Europe, we've passed the six month follow up period for all patients enrolled in the CE Mark trial, and we completed the data submission to our Notified Body in early July. In addition, we recently announced the start of our HeartMate 3 less invasive surgical study in Europe. This small series of cases will attempt to demonstrate the surgical flexibility of HeartMate 3 and provide some real world experience with this technique prior to commercial approval. Our focus of course is increasingly on CE Mark approval and our European launch, which we still expect in the fourth quarter.

PHP had some notable accomplishments in recent months, most significantly the CE Mark approval obtained in July. Commercial sales have not yet started and should begin in a limited and phased rollout later this year and into 2016. In the U.S., we received unconditional approval from the FDA for our SHIELD II trial examining PHP in high-risk PCI cases, and we still expect to start enrollment in this study during the third quarter. It's really gratifying as an organization to reach this point after years of hard work from our team to develop this product. Congrats to the PHP team!

Regarding our latest news with St. Jude Medical, we are still in the go-shop period which will expire towards the end of August. As a reminder, we have created an employee website to keep you informed, which includes updated FAQs as well as a recording of our recent employee meeting audio and presentation. We will continue to provide information as soon as it becomes available.

This is an exciting time for us at Thoratec. While one very successful chapter of our corporate history is coming to a close, the next even more exciting chapter is about to be written. And after all that we've accomplished as an independent company, I'm as excited as I've ever been about our future opportunities, including the potential for our products as a centerpiece offering among a broader continuum of care for heart failure patients. This, combined with the coming improvement in our technology offerings, I think will mark the beginning of LVAD therapy's emergence as a mainstream late stage heart failure therapy. I told our investors the following yesterday: Lastly, because this may be the final Thoratec earnings call as an independent public company, I want to take a moment to thank our customers, patients, our Board of Directors, and our investors for their many years of patience and tireless efforts that have helped us reach this point as a company, a therapy and an industry. I particularly want to thank our employees. Thoratec was founded almost forty years ago on the belief that the epidemic of end-stage heart failure need not be the death sentence it had become. The path we've traveled since has been, at turns both harder and longer than anyone might have predicted. But along the way, we collected so many bright and passionate people who became committed to our mission, and have worked shoulder to shoulder with our clinicians to see the realization of that mission. As a result of their dedication, tens of thousands of lives have been saved and extended, and a great deal of value has been created for our shareholders. I consider myself very privileged to have been associated with Thoratec for approximately two decades now as either CEO or Director, and to have led this team.

Stay tuned for more updates, and keep up the great work.

Best,

Keith
