James F. Ropella, Senior Vice President and Chief Financial Officer of First Business Financial Services, Inc. (“Company”, “First Business”) today announced his plans to retire from his position during the fourth quarter of 2014. In order to ensure a smooth transition, Mr. Ropella will remain in his position at First Business as the Company conducts a thorough search for his replacement. The Company anticipates establishing a longer-term consulting arrangement with Mr. Ropella following his retirement.

As CFO, Mr. Ropella has helped lead the Company through a period of high performance and growth during which First Business grew from a $300 million asset bank to a $1.3 billion asset publicly-traded company. Mr. Ropella joined the Company in 2000 as Chief Financial Officer, led the process of taking the Company public and under his financial leadership, First Business executed a follow-on offering in December 2012 raising more than $29 million of capital to support the Company’s ongoing growth and expansion strategies.

“Jim is a skilled and savvy financial executive whose professionalism and expertise have been instrumental in the success of our organization, as well as the creation of long-term value for our shareholders,” said Corey Chambas, President and Chief Executive Officer. “We deeply appreciate his role in building First Business into a strong and thriving publicly-held bank. We wish him the best in his retirement, and are pleased that he has agreed to partner with us in executing a seamless transition to a new Chief Financial Officer over the remainder of 2014.”
