EXPRESS SCRIPTS REITERATES COMMITMENT TO RAISING OFFER IF ADDITIONAL SYNERGIES IDENTIFIED

Advisory Services, Analysts, Stockholders Support Express Scripts Position Company Urges Caremark Stockholders to Vote GOLD Proxy Card AGAINST The Flawed Caremark Merger Process

St. Louis, March 15, 2007 Express Scripts, Inc. (Nasdaq: ESRX) today issued the following statement of commitment to an acquisition of Caremark Rx, Inc. (NYSE: CMX):

Express Scripts is firmly committed to increasing the cash portion of our offer if we identify additional synergies during confirmatory due diligence in excess of $500 million. Caremark's closed door has prevented us from learning anything more about the company that would permit Express Scripts to increase its offer absent due diligence. We could not, in good conscience, increase our bid based on unknown, incremental synergies. However, we're absolutely committed to increasing our offer if we are able to identify more than $500 million in synergies through confirmatory due diligence.

Caremark's flawed process of shutting Express Scripts out of conducting confirmatory due diligence has left money on the table. By refusing to talk to Express Scripts, the Caremark Board of Directors continues to waste opportunities to obtain the highest value for Caremark stockholders.

The upside potential in an Express Scripts-Caremark combination is too compelling to ignore. The Express Scripts currency is stronger and more valuable to Caremark stockholders than a weaker CVS currency. Express Scripts is poised for accelerated growth and Caremark stockholders have the opportunity to share in that upside.

On the other hand, history shows that the vertical CVS/Caremark combination will destroy value. Clients pay PBMs for the savings they are able to obtain from their management of the pharmaceutical supply chain to drive down costs and make them more competitive. Retail is part of that chain, making vertical transactions illogical and value destructive.

Express Scripts is very encouraged by the growing number of voices arrayed against approval of Caremark's acquisition by CVS. These include the labor movement's Change to Win coalition, as well as the investor advisory services Glass Lewis, Proxy Governance, and Egan-Jones. Respected analysts such as Jeffries & Co. have observed that the loser could actually be the current Caremark shareholder base * if the CVS acquisition of Caremark is approved. In addition, yesterday, one of the nation's most sophisticated institutional investors, CalPERS, announced via its website that it is voting against the acquisition on both the CVS and Caremark proxies.

There is a real opportunity to create more value for Caremark stockholders with Express Scripts. It's now time to vote AGAINST a flawed process; a speculative, unproven vertical transaction; and less than maximum value. You must vote AGAINST the CVS merger proposal in order to benefit from a competitive bidding process.

Vote the GOLD proxy card TODAY AGAINST the proposed CVS merger.

Skadden, Arps, Slate, Meagher & Flom LLP, Arnold & Porter LLP, and Young Conaway Stargatt & Taylor, LLP are acting as legal counsel to Express Scripts, and Citigroup Corporate and Investment Banking and Credit Suisse are acting as financial advisors. MacKenzie Partners, Inc. is acting as proxy advisor to Express Scripts.
