Re: LSI and Agere to Combine into Storage, Networking and Consumer Powerhouse

I am very excited to share with everyone some important and historic news that will significantly shape the future of our company. Today we have announced that Agere Systems will be joining forces with LSI to create a larger, more competitive company. As one company, the new LSI will further strengthen the focus on our storage and consumer customers and add a significant networking component to our market-driven strategy.

First, let me say that this is a tremendous opportunity for us to continue the excellent progress we are making in transforming LSI into a market driven leader and to increase the value we bring to our customers, our shareholders and our employees. And it is because of the hard work done by all of you over the last year and a half that this opportunity is now possible.

Agere is a natural fit with LSI technologically and culturally. They are recognized leaders in the storage, networking and consumer space and we share many customers in common. Their products are complementary and will allow us to extend the reach of our silicon, systems and software building blocks into new opportunities. Like us, they have an innovative heritage with very deep roots. And they are a company that is transforming itself into a stronger competitor through increased focus on their target markets.

Together, we have an opportunity to accelerate our collective transformation. Combined, we ll have access to larger slices of our target markets; we ll have approximately double the number of engineers; and we had more patents issued last year to us than most of our competitors, including Broadcom, Marvell and many others.

As a result, our new company will have the potential to provide more solutions to our customers; participate in increased opportunities to grow our business; and deliver significantly more value, which are keys to building greater success for everyone.

Upon closing, our new leadership team will be led by me, with LSI CFO Bryon Look continuing in this role for the combined company. LSI non-executive chairman Jim Keyes will lead the new board of directors as its non-executive chairman. Between now and the closing of the transaction, Rick Clemmer, Agere president and CEO, and Peter Kelly, Agere CFO will work closely with Bryon and me to lead the critical integration planning that will be implemented once the transaction has closed.

At this time, we are not announcing any other organizational details. Our management structures remain separate and fully intact and we must continue to operate as independent companies with each focusing on our respective customers, development activities and operational responsibilities.

Today, I ll be hosting a webcast for LSI employees to share with you more information about the transaction and what it means to us. I encourage you to read the news release issued this morning and to visit the Agere website at www.agere.com to learn more about them. I have also asked members of the executive leadership team to host a series of open forums this week for all employees to answer as many of your questions as we can. More information on attending these sessions will be sent out shortly. In the coming weeks, we will be sharing as much information as we are legally able to and will keep you informed as we make progress toward closing, which we anticipate to occur in the first quarter of 2007. In the interim, let's all stay focused on the important job in front of us, which is to continue to deliver on our commitments to our customers, our shareholders and each other.

Thanks,

Abhi
